FOREWORD.

It is now eight years since the Department of Education published a library list for the elementary schools, and to meet the pressing demands for a new list, Deputy State Superintendent Miss Martha A. Sherwood has prepared this List of Books for Elementary and Rural Schools. This list is designed to aid county and city superintendents and teachers in the purchase of books for circulation among school children. It will be found particularly helpful in the selection of books for rural school libraries.

To a very wide knowledge of literature and of the reading tastes of children, Miss Sherwood has added extreme care and diligence in the editorial work involved for a number of months, and well merits the approval which the publication of the list will surely invoke.

This list is to be regarded as the authoritative list for the schools of Washington. A copy is provided for each school district in the state and is to be listed with the library books and accounted for as a part of the school equipment.

JOSEPHINE CORLISS PRESTON,
Superintendent of Public Instruction.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

In the selection of titles, plan of arrangement, classification, and for many annotations in the preparation of this list, extensive use has been made of the List of Books for School Libraries, issued by the Oregon Library Commission in 1907, and the Catalog of Books of the Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh for use in the First Eight Grades of the Pittsburgh Schools. Other catalogs to which frequent reference has been made are List of Books for Elementary School Libraries issued by the New York State Department of Education in 1912, the 1910-11 and 1912-13 Wisconsin List of Books for Township Libraries, the Minnesota School Library List issued by the Department of Education in 1912, and the Bulletins of the Educational Library of the State Board of Education of Pennsylvania. Reference has also been made to many other special lists and catalogs.

Grateful acknowledgment is made to the librarians of the Teachers' and Juvenile Departments of the Seattle Public Library for valuable advice in the selection of titles and editions, and to those supervisors and teachers of special subjects in the state who generously aided in the selection of books in their subjects.

HOW TO USE A SCHOOL LIBRARY.

The mere presence of a school library does not insure desired results. The profitable use of it requires thought and careful management. By skillful management, a few books may be made to do large service. The following suggestions for its use are taken from School Circular Number 2 issued by the Oregon State Library:

What You May Do to Make It of Service.

1. Know your books.
2. Look them over for something:
 - a. To read aloud.
 - b. To interest the child who does not read.
 - c. To help the one who has a decided interest.
 - d. To make the lessons more interesting.
 - e. To suggest ethical stories which will help to correct faults.
3. Read aloud from some of the best books.
4. Find out what each boy and girl cares most about and use curiosity or interest which has been aroused. Cultivate any decided aptitude, and awaken new interests.
5. Substitute a good book for the fair or poor one which is undermining the character of the child.
6. Read a "starter" from a big book, or from a neglected one which is really worth while.
7. Allow individual reading in the schoolroom when the lesson is learned, and do not make this a reward of merit.
8. Use the library to enliven the language lesson by Friday afternoon "book talks," avoiding formal reports.
9. Use library books to supplement the text-books. Assign readings and allow class time for reports on outside reading.
10. Ask questions to start search for information.
11. Choose a hero for each month and read about him, talk about him, learn about his life and times. (Arthur, Siegfried, Charlemagne, Franklin, Paul Jones.)
12. Read short stories to correct faults (and do not point the moral).
13. Teach use of table of contents and index. Let the children see who can find most about some subject in a given time in some certain book or books.
14. Plan an annual "library day" with program from one author, talks about the books, readings, a debate.
15. See that the library does three things for your school:
 1. Makes the lessons more interesting.
 2. Provides training in the use of books.
 3. Cultivates the reading habit.

HOME READING.

It is desirable that children should own books. Many times parents would purchase books for Christmas or birthday gifts for their children if they knew what selection to make or if their attention was called to the desirability of so doing. A short talk on children's books given once or twice during the year at a parent's meeting with list of books suitable for home reading placed on the board, would encourage the purchase of books for the home and be a valuable guide in the selection of books used in the neighborhood.

The plan of having certain books read at home and briefly reported on in school is excellent. It helps to interest both parents and children in reading.

STORY TELLING.

Stories are a delight of children and a joy of youth and story telling is an excellent means of interesting children in books. Systematic work in story telling in the lower grades lays a foundation for a liking for good reading and, at any age, by means of a story, interest may be turned to a special subject, as some phase of nature study or historical reading, or to some particular book which has not been read as much as it should be. When used for the latter purposes, books where further information may be gained should be shown or the story told with occasional reference to the particular book.

STATE TRAVELING LIBRARY.

The state traveling library supplies books to schools in any city, town, or rural community making applications for the libraries. The selections of books are adapted to the needs of the school or community as set forth in the application. Efficient service has been rendered by this library to communities of the state having no library facilities. The only expense involved for the applicant is the cost of transportation. These libraries can be obtained by addressing the "State Traveling Library," Olympia, Washington.

INSTRUCTION IN LIBRARY METHODS.

The publishing of this list looks toward the building up of a good school library in every school in the State of Washington. The usefulness of a library depends in large measure on its management and care. Through proper care, the life of books is prolonged and children are taught needed respect for them. As the application of even a little library method in the care and circulation of books will greatly increase the efficiency of the school library, definite library instructions have been furnished for this list by the State Library, Olympia.

Checking.

When books are received check them immediately with bookseller's bill and duplicate order sheets, to see that entries are correct.

Opening a Book.

Before attempting to put any book through the mechanical processes, open each one according to the following directions:

Hold the book with its back on a smooth or covered table; let the front board down, then the other, holding the leaves in one hand while you open a few at the back, then a few at the front, and so on, alternately opening front and back, gently pressing open the sections, until you reach the center of the book.

Carefully cut the leaves of the books with a paper cutter, and collate for imperfections. If any are found return book to the publisher.

Mark of Ownership.

On the title page of each book and on page 30, stamp, or neatly print, the name of the library.

Pockets.

Paste a manilla pocket on the inside of the back cover of each book. The pocket holds the book card when the book is on the shelves of the library. These pockets, with rules and regulations printed thereon, can be purchased from the Democrat Printing Co., Madison, Wis., for $2.75 per thousand.

Book Cards.

The book card should bear the name of the author and short title of the book, neatly and legibly written, the date loaned, name of the borrower, and the date returned. This card is kept in the pocket when the book is on the shelves and is the record of a loan when the book is out of the library. These cards may be purchased from Lovejoy & Lincoln, 128 1st St., Portland, Oregon, for $1.75 per thousand.

Date Slips.

Paste a piece of blank paper, uniform in size with the book card, on the fly leaf opposite the pocket. This is used as a date slip and should be stamped with the date of issue for the convenience of the borrower.

Accession Record.

This record is one of most importance to the school library. Enter books in the accession record, one volume to a line, giving the information desired in the different columns noted. Write the accession number, taken from this accession record, on the back of the title page of each book. This record book can be purchased for $1.00, 1,000 lines, from the Democrat Printing Co., Madison, Wis.

Classification.

Books treating of the same subject should be arranged together on the shelves. The system devised for this and the one to be adopted is the Dewey Decimal Classification. The outline for this classification is printed below. When a book is classified write the class number on the book pocket, book card, and the back of the book. In writing this number on the back of the book use white ink, David's Letterine, for books with dark bindings and India ink on those of a lighter binding. Place the lettering at about 1½ inches from the bottom of each book.

Shelving.

Arrange the books on the shelves according to the classification, with the exception of fiction, which should be placed on the shelves alphabetically by author.

Care of Books.

Instruction in the care of books should be given in classes, and to the individual before issuing books. Pupils should be trained to care for books, to handle them carefully, and to keep them clean. However, a proper example and incentive to this must be given the pupil by the teacher, in keeping the books mended, clean, and in an orderly condition on the shelves, and the library neat and attractive in appearance. Books should be carefully wrapped in paper on rainy days, or when they are to be carried any distance from the school.

Mending.

It is very important that all books in need of mending should be promptly and carefully repaired. No book should be placed on the shelves when returned to the library until it has been examined. Loose leaves should be tipped in with a very narrow margin of paste. Never use strips of paper to insert a leaf. Following is a list of mending supplies and a recipe for making paste:

Mending Materials.

Onion skin paper (possibly can be obtained at a local bank; also, when new books are received preserve the onion paper in which many of the books are wrapped); paper cambric, black and white; white linen thread; needles—No. 4 straight and a few curved; gummed linen strips, or Mulum in parvo binders No. 2 (Gaylord Bros., 624 Arch St., Philadelphia).

Paste.

- One tablespoonful of alum,
- One quart of water,
- One-half pint flour.

Mix the flour with a small quantity of water and stir into a cream. Cook for 20 minutes. Dissolve the alum in the water and bring to a boil; stir in the cream three minutes before it is through cooking. Stir while cooking, strain, and add 20 drops of oil of cloves.

Loan.

To loan a book, take the book card from the pocket and write on it the date of issue in the proper column, the name of the borrower, and on the date slip, opposite the pocket, stamp the date. This date is a guide to the borrower to know when he must return the book.

The book card is the librarian's record as to when the book was issued and to whom.

Arrange these cards by class under date of issue, and keep them filed in a tray or box.

When a book is returned find the book card in your file of the same date as that written in the book on the date slip, and return the card to the pocket.

When the book is returned it should be carefully examined to see if it needs repairing before placing on the shelves.

Rules for Borrowers.

It is wise for a school to formulate a short set of rules governing the use and loan of its library books.

Catalog.

A good catalog is essential to the intelligent use of a library. A vast amount of information may be contained in a few books but is valueless unless some good key is provided. A small number of books well cataloged is far more valuable than a large number without a guide to their contents.

A printed catalog of the contents of the library is an unwarranted expense and is out of date as soon as printed.

A dictionary catalog made on cards and filed in trays in a card cabinet, can be kept up to date, cards being inserted as fast as new books are cataloged. By this method every book is represented by an author, title, and by as many subject cards as the contents of the book requires. These cards are filed alphabetically, in the trays of the card cabinet, like the words in a dictionary. This catalog answers the questions,—has the library a book by a given author? of a given title? on a given subject?—and the number on each card indicates where the book may be found on the shelves.

The making of a card catalog requires technical knowledge, skill, and a familiarity with books and authors. It should not be undertaken by one who has neither training nor experience.

The school libraries may obtain advice and assistance from the State Library, Olympia, Wash., on cataloging, classification, or technical details of library work.

NOTES ON BOOK BUYING AND BUYING FROM AGENTS.

It is not necessary to buy complete sets of the works of any author. An incomplete set may be completed as opportunity arises or occasion requires. A very small library will need only a few of the best works of each author. * * * * *

Books in series are usually of unequal value and should never be bought as a lot. The purchase of any set or series means a certain amount of waste, and makes the volumes which are used expensive, as the cost of unused volumes must be added.

The "complete libraries" which some commercial houses are offering are, without exception, poor investments. * * * * *

Schools are constantly importuned by book agents and publishers to buy expensive sets of books. The experience of most small libraries proves that very few sets of large volumes are much used. Those that are necessary can ordinarily be purchased from the dealers at a considerable discount from the price made by the book agents. No books should be bought from them until correspondence with reputable dealers has proved that the books are worthy and that lower prices can not be obtained.—List of Books for School Libraries issued by the Oregon Library Commission, 1906.

TWO HUNDRED BOOK LIST FOR THE EIGHT GRADES.

The two hundred book list is planned as a small, working library for the elementary school, rural or graded. It includes books in history, geography, nature study, and the occupations for use in connection with the work of the different grades, and standard stories for children's reading. Attempt has been made to secure a fair balance of kinds of books and the best selection of titles in particular classes. The latter was not always possible as, in some cases, the best book in a given subject was sacrificed because not adapted to a particular grade.

The State Department urges two things: That school boards make yearly appropriation for the school library; and that, when purchasing books for the library, selection be made from the two hundred book list or from similar books of the first and second choice in the general list, until a library is built up that is well balanced in subjects and in division among the grades. It would then be wise to begin adding books of special appeal to the community.

EXPLANATION.

The Dewey Decimal System of Classification has been used in the preparation of this list. (See Instruction in Library Method.)

The titles included in the Two Hundred Book List and a few others are marked with a dagger (†). In the mind of the compiler these are the first books to be selected for a school library. The books for second selection are marked with a star (*). A rather wide latitude was allowed in marking this list as it was intended to include many books good to place in a library after the small library essential to school work had been selected.

The grading of the books is of course approximate, as a child in a fifth grade may read as difficult books as another in the eighth. One purpose of the grading is to indicate what books in reference and collateral reading are usable in connection with the work of particular grades as given in the State Course of Study. Also, in most school libraries, there is a dearth of books for the first four grades. It is quite as essential to have the proper number and kind of books for little children as for pupils in the higher grades, and it is hoped that the grading will assist the teacher in securing a proper distribution of books among the grades as the classification will assist in securing a balance of kinds.

ORDERING BOOKS.

Two prices are given in this list. One is the retail price which must be paid for all orders of less than ten dollars ($10). The other is a reduced price list for orders of ten dollars ($10) and above. The latter price has been agreed upon for the schools of Washington by the following book sellers:

Lowman & Hanford Co., Seattle.

John W. Graham Co., Spokane.

All orders of books from the reduced price list to these companies should be accompanied by the statement that the books are ordered from this list, should give the number of the book, the title, author, and publisher, and whatever information as to edition that is given here.

(4-5) A fanciful story of the adventures of little Davy who goes along the moon path to the moon.

- 240 ————— Merry adventures of Robin Hood. Scrib-
(4-6) ner, $3.00 2.25
- The Robin Hood story is now and then objected to on the score of its supposedly teaching perverted moral and social relations. The objection is as superficial as the outlawry that calls it forth. He who is not misled by mere names must see in the story the same core of honesty and fidelity that we find in the Jungle Book, and a kindred charm of the woods. Humor brightens it, and opens the child to mirthful incongruities of boast and act, of expectation and fulfillment. In it a manly self reliance and fair play go side by side with gratitude for a friend's help in need, and a quick readiness to lend a hand. The individual and the social virtues are there embodied in Robin and his faithful outlaws. Colby.
- 241 ————— Pepper and salt; or, Seasoning for young
(3-4) folk. Harper, $1.50..... 1.12
- Fairy tales, ballads and rhymes, with clever illustrations by the author.
- 242 †————— Some merry adventures of Robin Hood.
(4-6) (School readings.) Scribner, 50c..... .45
- Taken from his larger book of Robin Hood. Admirably adapted for supplementary reading.
- 243 ————— Story of King Arthur and his knights. Scrib-
(6-8) ner, $2.00 1.60
- One of the most attractive of the King Arthur books. Splendid literary style. Beautiful illustrations.
- 244 †Ragozin, Mme. Z. A. Siegfried and Beowulf. Knicker-

- 1041 †———— Industrial studies: United States. Ginn, 65c.56
(6-8)
Describes the great industries of the United States, their processes and the physical geography connected with them. A. L. A.
- 1042 Brigham, A. P. Commercial geography. Ginn, $1.30..... 1.17
(Ref)
A high school text useful in upper grammar grades as a general reference in commercial geography.
- 1043 †Carpenter, F. G. How the world is clothed. (Readers in commerce and industry.) Am. bk., 60c..... .51
(6-7)
Large amount of information, clearly and compactly given, as to the culture and manufacture of cotton, wool and silk, source and preparation of leather, furs, feathers, rubber, straw goods, etc. A. L. A.
The books of this, the Chamberlain, the Chase and Clow, and the Rochelau series, are useful to supplement the geography text. They present in simple form full information on industries, many of which the teacher will select for detailed study. In schools of limited means they are better purchased for reference than in sets for class reading. The Carpenter books are somewhat more advanced in style than the Chamberlain, the Rochelau series is confined to American industries and thus limited in use. The Chase and Clow books, while a little old, have the advantage of being a two-volume series.
- 1044 †———— How the world is fed. (Readers in commerce and industry.) Am. bk., 60c..... .51
(6-7)
The author takes the reader on tours to the great food centers of the world, to the markets of exchange, to the farms, forests, seas, etc., and gives them a knowledge of the production and preparation of food.

- V. 2. Clothing—Cotton—Calico—Printing—Linen—Woolens—Carpet weaving—Silk—Hats—Furs—Shoe making—Leather—Horse hides—Corn, wheat, and meadow grass—Milk, butter, and cheese—Meats—Fish—Whale fisheries—Fruit—Sugar—Candy—Spices—Paper and printing—Book binding.
- 1051 Herbertson, A. J., and Herbertson, Mrs. F. D. Man and his 54
(Ref) work; an introduction to human geography. Macmillan, 60c.
- The method adopted is, as far as possible, concrete. Beginning with the simplest societies, in which the effect of physical surroundings is, as it were, "writ large," the increasing complexity introduced by new conditions and occupations is illustrated by concrete examples of existing societies. Preface.
- 1052 Kirby, Mary, and Kirby, Elizabeth. Aunt Martha's corner 36
(3-6) cupboard. Ed. pub., 40c.
- About tea, coffee, sugar and other articles, and the countries in which they are found. Oregon.
- 1053 *Lane, Mrs. M. A. L. Industries of today. (Youth's com- 22
(5-6) panion series.) Ginn, 25c.
- Included because of descriptions of some industries not given in other books of this class; such as, Adobe and its uses—Making of fireworks—How pins are made—Boston market—The morning paper.

north. Stokes, $1.20..... 1.00

Interesting descriptions of life in the North by the well known explorer.

1099 *St. Nicholas. Island stories. Century, 65c..... .59
(4-5)

Here will be found something about our various island possessions including the story of a little Cuban, a little talk about the Philippine Islands, Bishop Potter's impressions of the Hawaiian Islands, and Frederick A. Ober's account of Porto Rico's first Fourth of July. But the reader is taken further afield and is given a thrilling account of Robinson Crusoe's island, what a boy saw in Madefra, hunting shells in Ceylon, a tale of a narrow escape in the Cannibal Islands, and a thrilling account of the bravery of the American sailors in the story of the storm at Samoa. Oregon.

1100 Scandlin, Christiana. Hans, the Eskimo: a story of Arctic

1102 †Smith, M. E. E. Eskimo stories. Rand, 40c..... .34
(2-3)

An admirable book for the children's own reading in connection with the geographic study of the Eskimo as a race type.

GEOGRAPHICAL READERS LISTED BY SETS.

Because of the number of geographical readers published and the general tendency to purchase these in sets, it seemed advisable to list them by sets and to indicate their place and use.

Number and grade. Reduced price.

(5-7) Carpenter, F. G. Geographical readers. 6v. Am. bk.

A series of geographical readers with the merit of having been written almost wholly from personal experience. Fair illustrations from photographs. Subjects well selected, being those cities, localities, industries and people that the teacher would naturally emphasize in the study of a particular country. Their best use is in connection with the second "going over" of the continents.

1103 *Africa, 60c.51

- 1147 ——— Ume San in Japan.

Peeps at many lands. 52v. Macmillan, each, 55c..... .44

A many volumed series, not all included here, some of which treat of leading cities. They give descriptions of scenery, industries and people, but place emphasis on child life. Myths of the particular country are included in some volumes. Unusually good illustrations. An occasional volume might wisely be placed in the school library to use in study of those countries where little material is available.
